Appendix - Role Descriptions

Role	Description
Remuneration Committee (RemCo) Chair	Whilst the RemCo is the final decision maker for Executive Directors and Leadership Team remuneration, together with oversight and approval of Companywide remuneration policy, including share schemes, the RemCo Chair is responsible for ensuring that decisions are fully and cooperatively debated. The RemCo Chair is also responsible for the appropriate market disclosures via the Directors Remuneration Report and, where required, appropriate investor engagement. In conjunction with the main Board Chair, the RemCo Chair agrees the CEO year end pay and bonus outcomes for approval by the RemCo.
Main Board Chair	The Chair is the line manager for the CEO, agreeing annual personal objectives and reviewing performance at year end. The Chair should also make performance recommendations to the RemCo Chair at year end for the CEO, which is approved by the Committee.
Chief Executive Officer (CEO)	In conjunction with the HRD the CEO should have input to the design of the Companywide reward policy including the Leadership Team. Within the terms of the agreed remuneration policy make recommendations to the RemCo for the Leadership Team (including the CFO) for pay and bonus outcomes and any other remuneration elements. The CEO will have a line manager relationship with the Main Board Chair and set personal goals and objectives annually for approval.

BOARD REMUNERATION COMMITTEE

	Whilst the CEO does not take part in RemCo decisions in relation to their own pay and is not present during committee discussions, it is acknowledged that personal discussions regarding own pay can take place with the Main Board Chair and the RemCo Chair if required outside the RemCo.
Group Human Resources Director (HRD)	The Group HRD and the Head of Reward are to some extent conflicted in relation to the overall company remuneration policy. RemCo final approval is the appropriate mitigation to this, and reliance on not being present when own pay is being considered and agreed. The HRD is responsible for the acquisition and retention of human resources and the risks associated with achieving this within the company. To support this the HRD is required to design and recommend the overall Company and Executive Director policy for approval and its operation in conjunction with the CEO, Head of Reward and Pensions and RemCo advisers. Matters for approval may be presented to the RemCo for approval from the HRD with the RemCo Chair's agreement.
Head of Reward and Pensions	The Head of Reward and Pensions is a resource to the HRD/CEO and the RemCo Chair. Whilst this potentially creates a conflict of interest given the HRD is the line manager. Reliance on the RemCo final approval for all decisions and the access to independent advice mitigate this conflict. Maintains the regular working relationship with the RemCo Adviser and normally overseeing all work undertaken. Matters for approval may be presented to the RemCo for approval from the Head of Reward with the RemCo Chair's agreement.
RemCo Adviser	The RemCo Adviser is a RemCo appointment to provide independent advice. Advice can be to both the RemCo and the Executives – but has to be accepted as independent by all parties with the advice being undertaken transparently to all. Advice is normally channelled through the Head of Reward to ensure efficiency and understanding,
